She said: 'No, it don't.' We kept going on until we got to an old gate place. I said: 'Tm not going this way; I'm not going.' She said: 'Wby? I said: 'Because I'm not going this way.' She said: 'Well, you hold on for me at the gap right at the back of my house; I'm going down this way a little ways; I'll be back in a few minutes.' I waited at the gap and, after awhile. I don't know, I guess it was about a half an hour, she came on back she did not say what she was going down there for. I did not ask her about what she was going for. When she came back she said: "It I'd known all this sumac was out here I'd have gathered was out here I'd have gathered

"Then we went on back to Pokey's house and I lay down again. When Mary Craghead, Betsy Ellis, Pokey, and I got down to the fodder stacks by the fence the 4 o'clock train was blowing. I don't know how far it was that we went with Cetsy Ellis and Mary Crashead. We went outside of Mr. Fore's field. I turniittle way. LED TO MR. POLLARD'S.

Where did that lane come from and Q. Where did that take coates go to?

A. It came from out of the woods, and the other end of it runs right up to Mr. Poltard's stuble. Pokey had on a sort of an old blue dress that day. When I left Pokey I went back to the gap right in front of her house. It was on Mr. Fore's line fence, and right in sight of Pokey's house. It was the line fence hetween Messrs. Thompson and Fore's, as they had but one fence. Pokey was gone as near as I can judge, about half an hour. When she returned to me she did not come the way she went, but came around the fence. It was warm weather, and she was just tolerable warm. There was one snag in her coat. That was ally and she was just tolerable warm. There was one snag in her coat. That was all I noticed about her clothes. I turned back because I knew that Mr. Pollard had ordered Pokey not to come through there, and, moreover, that it had been said that she had been taking some of Mr. Pollard's chickens, some place or ten

Mr. Pollard's chickens—some nine or ten of his chickens—and I did not want to go through Mr. Pollard's place with anybody like that. We got right over the fence and went back to the gap in front of Pokey Barnes's, by going right up the sunk place in Mr. Fore's field. We did not return the same way we came. We not return the same way we came. We crossed the branch at the same place both times. I don't know what time we got back to Pokey's house. As soon as we got there I picked up Pokey's child's dress, spread it out upon the floor, and lay down on it. I don't know how long. The witness told of Pokey's conduct from the time she returned until the alarm was sounded by Mr. Pollard Pokey then called to her mother to run to the house, as there was something the natter with Mr. Pollard.

Ellen was asked whether she had not made the statement that she had seen Pokey Barnes all that afternoon to Sergeant H. L. Cardoza, one of the Richmond soldiers at Lunenburg Courthouse, upon the occasion of the trial in the Luof Pokey Barnes.

Ciyde Fore testified that he was working in the field opposite Mr. Pollard's on the afternoon of the murder, and saw Ellen Gale and Pokey Barnes returning to Pokey Barnes's house about 5 o'clock that evening. He further stated that it would take a man about 15 minutes to replant one of the corn rows in that field, which questions was a subject of such interest during the afternoon.

CORN ROWS INTRODUCED. Mr. E. A. Clements, the constable, who arrested the women, went over his story about taking dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Pollard on the day of the murder. He said that the corn rows on Mr. Fore's place were 284 yards long. He gave much other oxidence regarding the distance. other evidence regarding the distance and location of objects surrounding Pol-

The next witness, and one of the most important of the day, was Mr. D. J. Gregory, who testified that early Saturinto the lane leading from Mr. Pollard's stable to the old gate place, on the north side of Mr. Poliard's house, and there near the draw-bars found three bare-foot tracks, two coming in and one going out. THE FIEND ESCAPED.

A Dastardly Outrage Attempted in Suffolk.

SUFFOLK, VA., May 1.-A dastardly outrage was perpetrated here this morning about 1 o'clock, when a negro fiend forcibly broke in the door of the restdence of Mrs. L. W. Howell, a highly respected lady, who upon hearing the rascal at the door, arose from her bed. He entered the room, and selzed her, when ehe screamed at the top of her voice, and fought with desperation. Her daughter also called for help, and the villian then ran off, without accomplishing his purpose. Two young men who responded to the cries of distress saw the negro getting over a fence, but he succeeded in making his escape. instituted a cearch for the miscreant early this morning, and tracked him for some distance, but failed to capture him.

A SERIOUS LOSS.

A Pocket-Book Containing a Large Sum-A Factional Fight.

CREWE, VA., May 1.—(Special.)—Mrs. J. T. Tench lost a pocket-book containing $525 this afternoon, and there is no clue as to who has it. Her husband is come as to who has it. Her husband is a freight conductor on the Norfolk and Western road, and she, hearing a train coming in, went to the back fence to see if he was aboard. The pocket-book, with her handkerchief, was placed on the fence and forgotten. She returned for the property in a short while, to find it had been taken.

Southwesterns showed little of interest. Reading was strengthened for a time on the report from Philadelphia of the signing of the foreclosure decree. The report that the New York coal companies had advanced the price of anthracite 25 cents per ton, to take effect at once, however, fell flat. It will be remembered that the Reading and Lehigh Valley advanced prices early in the week.

London did little or nothing, owing to the fact that the exchange was closed, according to custom, on May-Day.

The gold shipments naturally occasioned considerable comment. At one time it was stated that $1.70,000 would be forwarded, but at the close of the day it was stated at the Sub-Treasury that the net engagements amounted to $1,450,000 only, a quarter of a million being remitted by one exporter, According to good advices, however, only $1,200,000 will 50.

Provisions—The hog market contributed to the weakness which prevailed in product early, and wheat extended further depression at the close. It was a notable feature that land, instead of declining with pork and ribs, held firm, and actually recorded a gain at the close, instead of showing a loss, as the other commodities did. Packers and professional traders express the opinion that with the continued heavy receipts of hogs, there is little hope for product.

To-day's features: The decline in prices to-day at the Slart was due to the disappointing Liverpool advices. Prices in that market have made but slight response to the sharp rise here recently, and to-day the spot market there was less active. But subsequently prices railled and advanced. Then, too, there was general buying here. The spot markets at the South, in some cases, were higher and more active, and the exports from the ports were of liberal proportions.

The Dry-Goods Market.

NEW YORK, May I.—The main conditions of the dry-goods market to-day have shown but little alteration from recent reports. The improvement in repeat tone previously noticed does not develow with any degree of rapidity, and its chafteness of the staple cotton-goods departments. The tone of the market is film on brown goods, and fairly steady in other departments.
